

KORE PRESS PRESENTS

Teacher Institute Culturally Responsive Pedagogy

{ for librarians and educators }

Facilitated by Dr Stephanie Troutman (UA Assistant Professor of Emerging Literacies, Black feminist scholar, and first-generation college student) & Mariah Harvey, M.Ed. (public school educator, inclusive and accessible curriculum developer, activist and poet)

THURSDAY JUNE 7, 2018, 8AM-4:30PM
City Center for Collaborative Learning (37 E Pennington)

This day-long institute includes a morning and afternoon session, breakfast, lunch and a copy of the anthology Letters to the Future: Black Women / Radical Writing, edited by Erica Hunt and Dawn Lundy Martin (Kore Press 2018; $40.00 value).

All participants will leave with a fully planned unit of study.

COST: $150 / REGISTER AT KOREPRESS.ORG

Connecting disciplines: English, Humanities, Ethnic Studies, Democracy, Social and Racial Justice Studies, African-American Literature.

Kore Press is a nonprofit arts organization dedicated to keeping the margins at the center through publishing, education, and collaborative projects that focus on women, writers of color, and LGBTQ folks.